Assessment tool T06

Name of tool	Satisfaction with decision questionnaire
What does it assess?	How happy the patient is with a particular decision they have made about their treatment.
Who fills it in?	The patient
Reference for tool	Holmes-Rovner M et al (1996). Patient satisfaction with health care decisions: The satisfaction with decision scale. Medical Decision Making , 16, 58–64
Tool developer's contact details	Margaret Holmes-Rovner PhD Professor and Chief, Health Services Research Department of Medicine Michigan State University B213 Clinical Center East Lansing, MI 48824 Margaret.HolmesRovner@ht.msu.edu
Do you have to contact the developer(s) for permission to use it?	Yes
Information you need to give the developer(s)	Please provide the tool developer with: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>■ a brief description of your project</li> <li>■ information about the questionnaires and other measures that you are going to use</li> <li>■ (after your project is complete) summary of the results — especially those about the satisfaction with decision questionnaire</li> </ul>
How much does it cost to use it?	Free
Specific instructions	The example questionnaire given in this document is about patients' views about a decision they have made about whether or not to consult a health professional about HRT. Therefore, you will need to change the instructions at the beginning of the questionnaire so that they relate to the particular decision(s) that you are interested in. It is best to use the satisfaction with decision questionnaire just after the decision has been made. If it is used a long time (e.g. days, weeks) after the decision was made then the patients' responses will be influenced by how effective the treatment was etc. and will not assess how good the decision was when it was made. Scoring: Add up the scores for the six items to calculate the total scale score. The higher the score, the higher the patients' satisfaction.
